

Your Infinity Map — How to Complete It

A gift from your funeral home · “Because love plans ahead.”

You've just done something remarkable: your arrangements are made, chosen by you, exactly as you want them. This workbook completes the gift. It gathers everything else your family will need — in one place, in your own words. Here's how to finish it.

1

Take your time — but set your date

Work through the workbook at home, at your own pace. A section an evening, or a quiet Sunday afternoon, is plenty. Aim to finish within 30 days, while the decisions you made today are still fresh in mind. Type into the PDF on your computer, or print it and fill it in by hand — a handwritten copy becomes a family keepsake.

2

Return your Funeral Home Copy — two sections only

Bring or mail a copy of just these two sections back to your funeral home within 30 days:

① Personal Information — the details required for the death certificate. Filed with your arrangements, it means your family will sign papers instead of searching for facts.

② Funeral Wishes — your service preferences, kept on file alongside the arrangements you've already made.

Keep everything else private, at home

The rest of your Infinity Map — your financial overview, asset wishes, letters, and life story — is for your family only. Your funeral home does not need it and will not ask for it. Store the completed Map with your important documents, and tell one person exactly where it is. When your Funeral Home Copy is received, you'll be presented with a Certificate of Completion — because at that point, everything truly is in place.

Your Infinity Map holds sensitive information. Keep it on your own computer or on paper — please don't email the completed workbook to anyone, including the funeral home. Paper copies of the two return sections are best. Review and update your Map once a year, and let your funeral home know if your wishes change.
